IELTS scores must be at least 6.5, with no less than 6.0 on any individual band scores. - We cannot guarantee entrance into any specific course nor can we guarantee that each course will be offered.

Other Course and Admission Information:

- Students categorized as undergraduate students at DU must enroll in at least 12 credit hours per quarter, while students categorized as graduate students must enroll in at least 8 graduate-level credit hours per quarter.

Interested students should contact Stephanie Roberts for more information.

Housing and Other Fees:

Housing and Meals:
Students are expected to pay the cost of housing and meals, as these costs are not included as part of the exchange agreement. Please note DU cannot guarantee on-campus housing. Exchange students can choose to stay in either on-campus (if available) or off-campus housing. However, if you sign up for housing and are given a space, please know this is a contract that you will be expected to fulfill for the duration of time you attend DU and you are subject to DU Housing cancellation policies.
On-Campus Housing: You can learn more about each on-campus residence hall by going to this website: http://www.du.edu/housing/buildings/index.html. Charges are per quarter and costs vary based on the room and meal plan requested. Past exchange students have found housing in Centennial Towers (double rooms are available) or Nagel Hall Apartments (single rooms in a suite) as these rooms have kitchens, and remain open during university breaks. Be aware that on-campus housing is extremely limited and may not be available. More information concerning Housing Application deadlines will be provided after acceptance as an Exchange student.

Please take the following information into your decision-making. At DU, the limited on-campus housing is mainly for students between ages of 16 and 21. The Housing Office may not be able to accommodate on-campus housing for students over age of 25. Also, please note that on-campus apartment housing at DU is gender neutral. If you have a strong preference for a single sex apartment, please let us know at your earliest convenience and we will do our best to accommodate it. While these buildings are not single sex buildings, individual bedrooms and suites are single sex. Also, please note that most bedrooms on campus are “double rooms” within a suite. This means that two students share one bedroom (with two beds). You do have options to choose a single bedroom, but you need to understand that a single bedroom is not guaranteed and you will have to work with the Housing Office individually.

Off-Campus Housing: DU’s Housing and Residential Education department does not provide off-campus housing, but still try to help connect students to resources for living off campus. More information can be found on their website at: http://www.du.edu/housing/resources/offcampus.html. DU does also provide information on a recommended off-campus housing option for interested students.

Health and Counseling Fee:
Students are expected to pay the Health and Counseling fee every quarter as this fee is not covered by the exchange. (Note: the Student Activity fee and the Technology fee are covered by the exchange and will not be billed to the student). Note this fee is separate from Medical Insurance listed below.

Medical insurance and waiver:
Students are required to participate in the DU Student Health Insurance Plan or provide proof of other adequate health insurance coverage. For more information: http://www.du.edu/health-and-counseling-center/coveragecosts/index.html.
Students are automatically enrolled in and expected to pay for University of Denver health insurance, but if proof of other adequate health insurance coverage can be provided, the insurance can be waived. For more information: http://www.du.edu/isss/media/documents/forms/j_insurance_form.pdf

*Proof of Finance amounts are based on 2015-2016 costs plus an anticipated 3% increase and are subject to change. Lund University Law students studying at the Law School have a different financial proof requirement based on the Law School’s semester structure, which has been sent to the Lund University international team.
